

is increasing enforcement and you know that costs a lot of bucks. He doesn't tell us how we're going to do that or any other way. I think that he is wrong on this. I think the bill is in a form now that's not totally acceptable to me, but I think we should advance it to Select File and I'd like to give a minute of my time to Jackie Smith and the rest to Senator Schmit.

PRESIDENT: Senator Smith, you have some time, about a minute and a half left, three minutes and a half.

SENATOR SMITH: I won't take that much time. Thank you and thank you, Senator Pappas. I just want to stand to say that, yes, there are some problems with the bill at this point. They have been working very, very hard to work those problems out and they will have those problems worked out by Select and as a member of the committee I respectfully have to disagree with Senator Wesely in this case and I will support this also.

PRESIDENT: Senator Schmit, you have three minutes left of Senator Pappas's time.

SENATOR SCHMIT: Thank you, Mr. President, I'll try not to take any more than I need. I just want to say this, that if there is anything in this bill that will stop any legal activity, then we'll take it out, but that's not true. What this bill is going to do, it's going to limit illegal activity, illegal advice, illegal recommendations, persons who are not qualified to give that kind of advice. I want to emphasize again that there are a lot of 90-day experts in this area and the facts are they are not experts. The facts are they are incorrect. I want to say again, Senator Wesely says only 11 other states have done it. Well maybe for once we ought to be in the leadership, Senator Wesely, rather than to come along like the tail on the cow. I would suggest that Nebraska as a food producing state, a major producer of red meat, a major producer of high quality wholesome food has a lot to gain by demonstrating some leadership in this area. If there is a problem with the bill, and there may well be, Senator Wesely thinks there is going to be a problem if it becomes law, but I would suggest that if there is a problem, then we continue to work on it. You don't kill the bill just because one or two individuals says we don't need it, we can handle it in a different manner. That happens with every single government agency
